Foreword

Time rules school

Man has always measured life by time. This might be by hunger pains, by the sun moving across the sky, by the face of a sundial, or by the hands of a clock.

Today school provides time for everything. There is time for victory and defeat, for work and play. There is time to explore the world of turkeys, steel mills, and salt mines, and a time to float down the river with Tom Sawyer and fall through the magic world of Alice and Wonderland. Then comes a time of struggle with fractions, with dissecting frogs, and learning the Bill of Rights.

Before one realizes, the time has come for that first football reception, the junior-senior banquet, the end of school picnic, and graduation.

School is not all play; there is also a time to study and to acquire skills which will be necessary to enter the world, when the time comes, as responsible citizens.

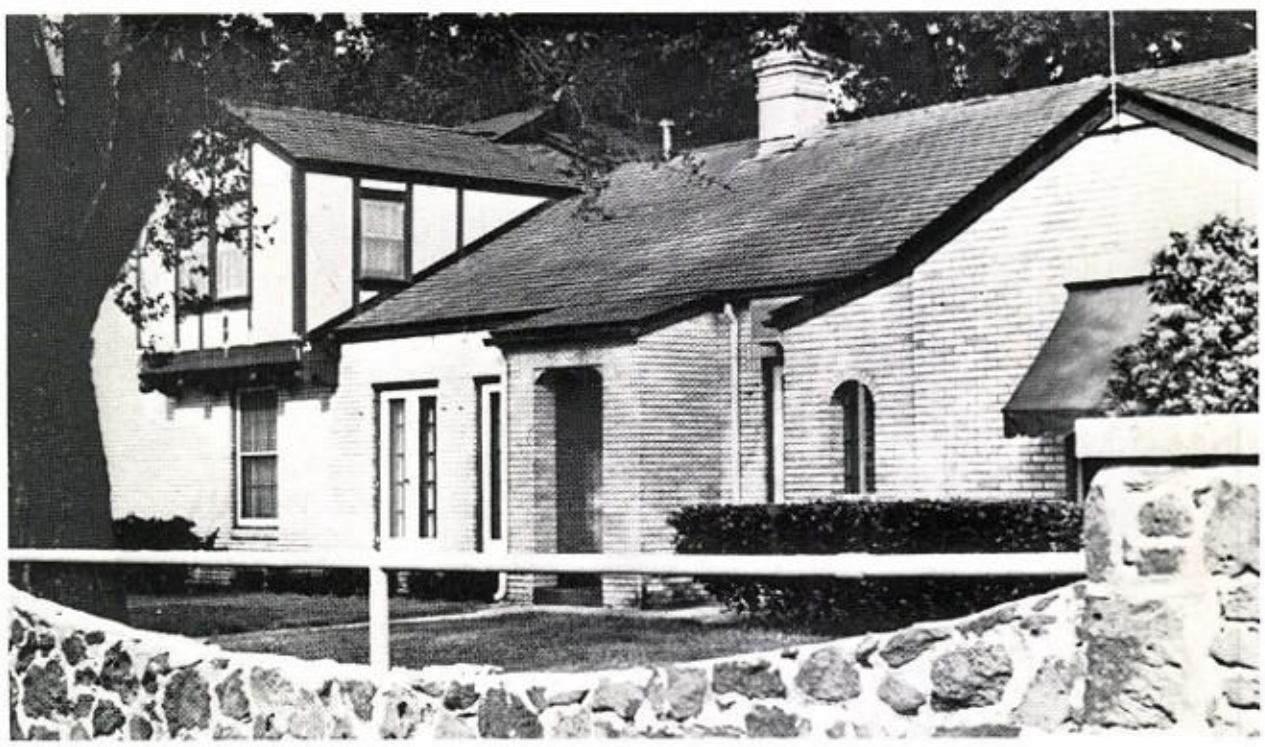
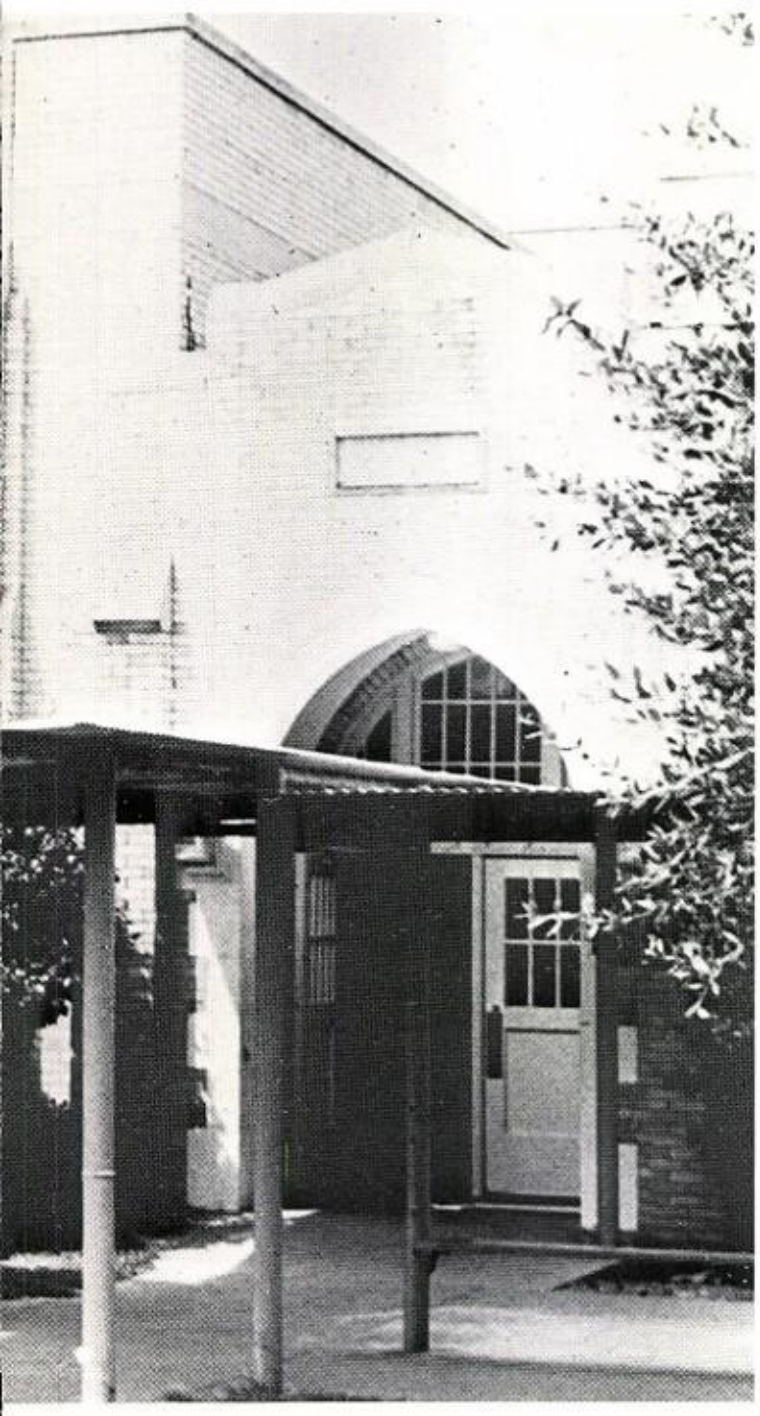
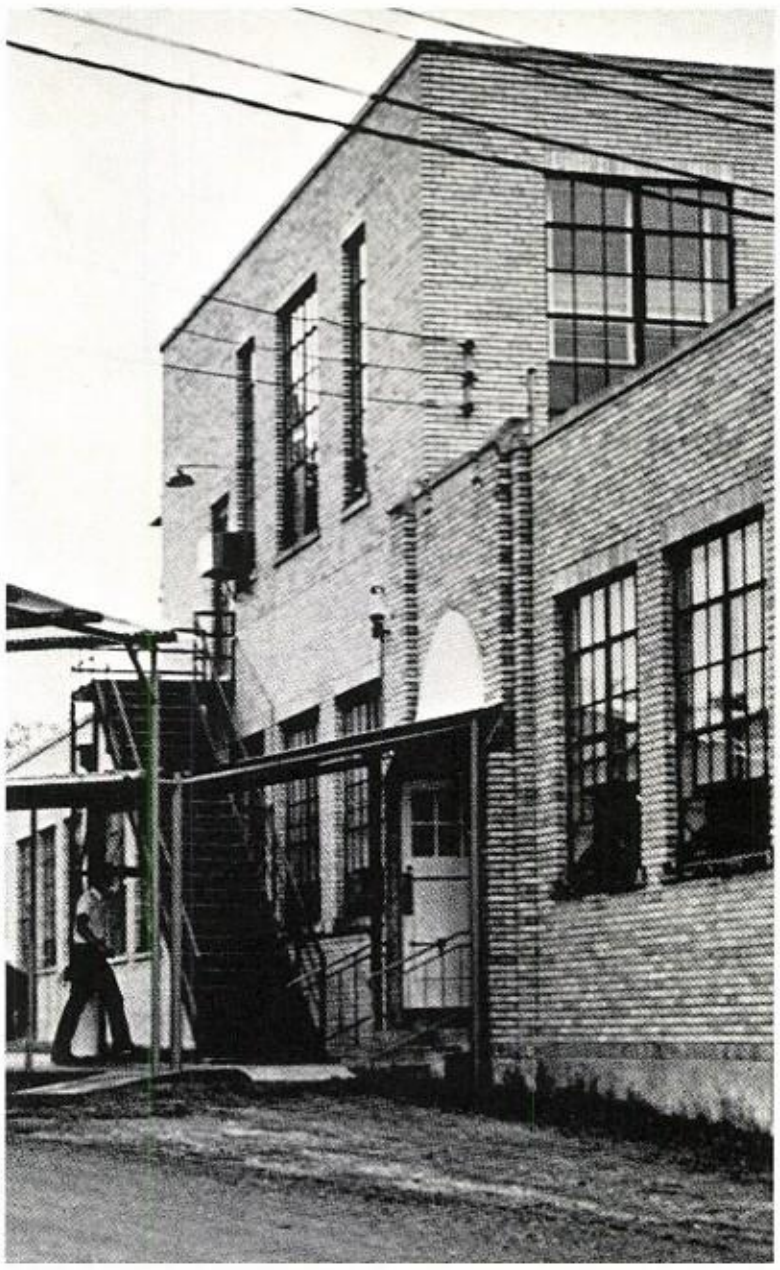
Campus houses teachers and classes

The main building presently houses elementary and some high school classes which will be transferred at completion of the new high school building.



A duplex teacherage houses the superintendent and the high school principal and their families.



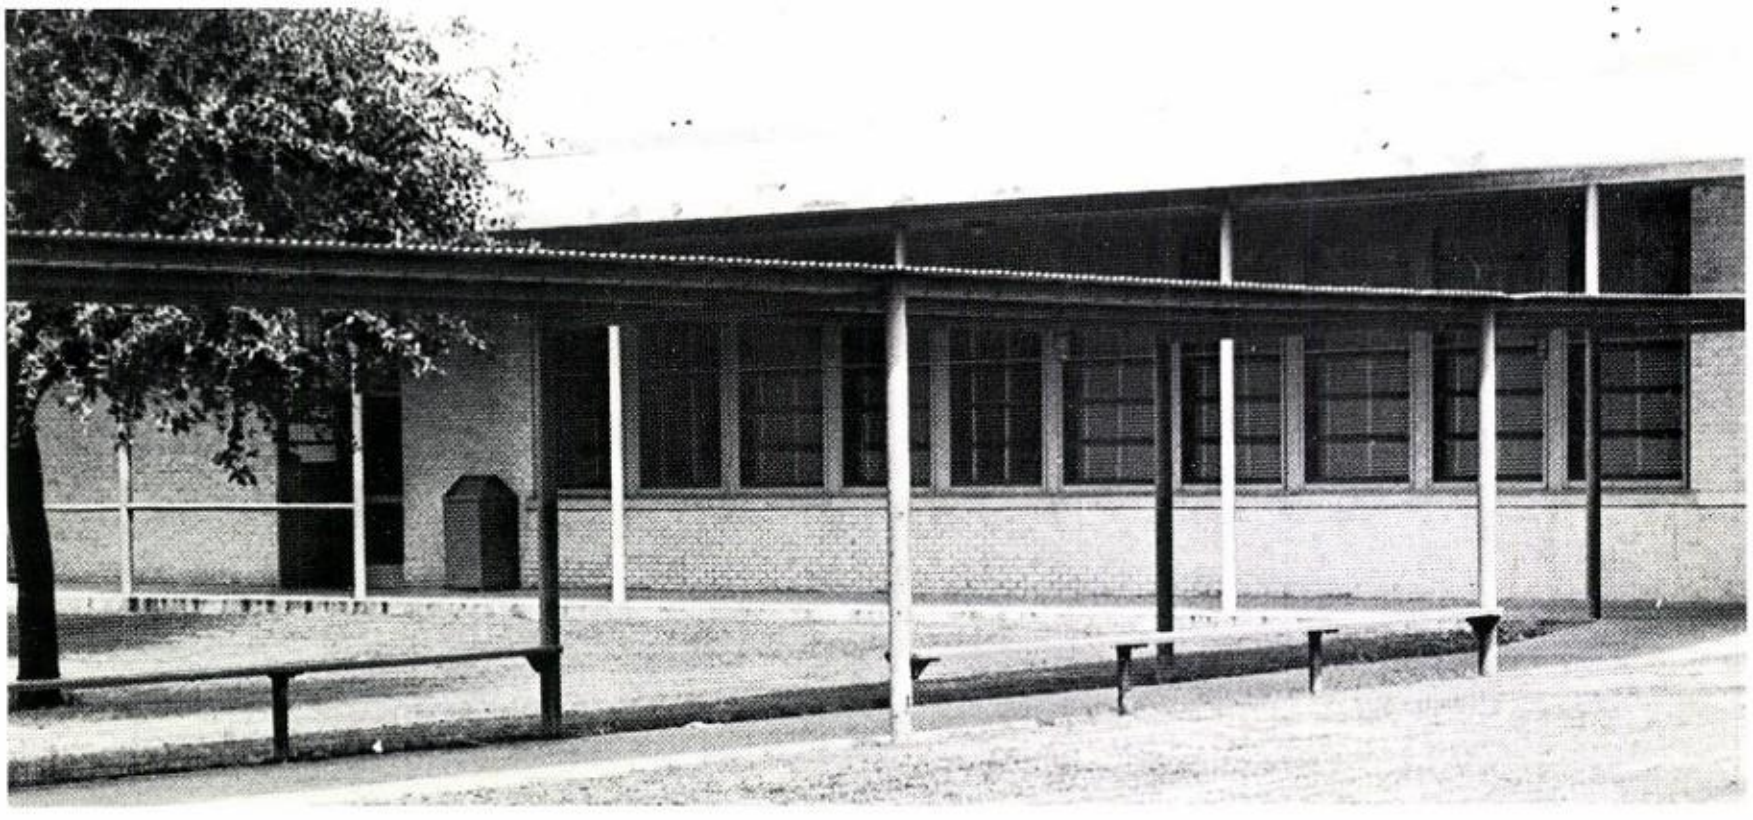


With additional classrooms and library upstairs, the elementary wing furnishes ample space for elementary and junior high classes.

During the summer, the wing was remodeled with a heating and air conditioning unit and the south end of the wing was glassed in.

In two daily sessions, pre-schoolers are taught to count, paint, and to cooperate with others.

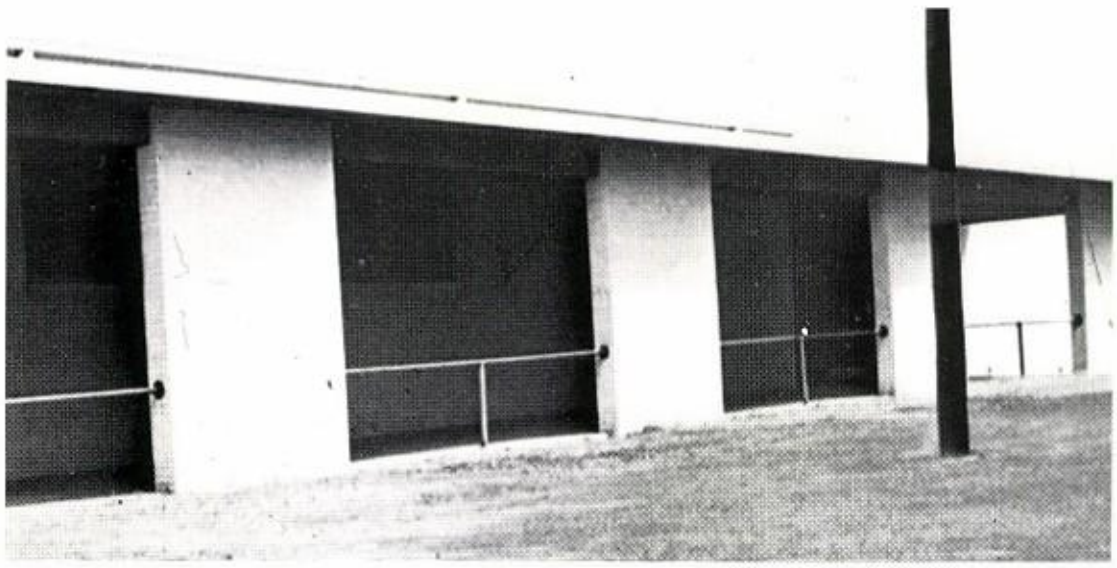
Facilities provide for food, maintenance



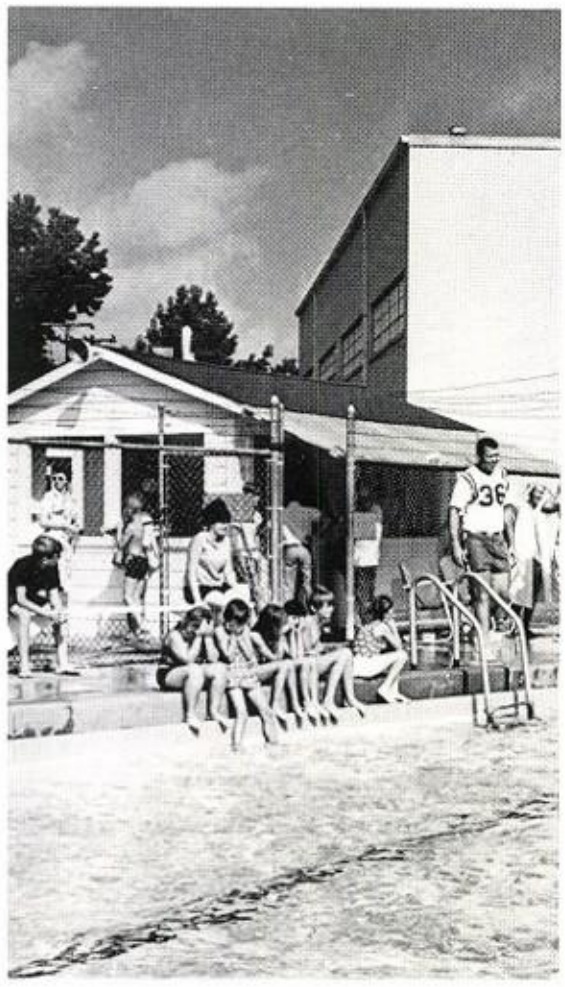
In the cafeteria, nutritious meals are served daily by three full-time and three part-time workers to approximately 450 students.

Furnished with modern commercial equipment, the laundry and maintenance work shop is used daily by school personnel in caring for athletic uniforms, towels, and cafeteria linens.

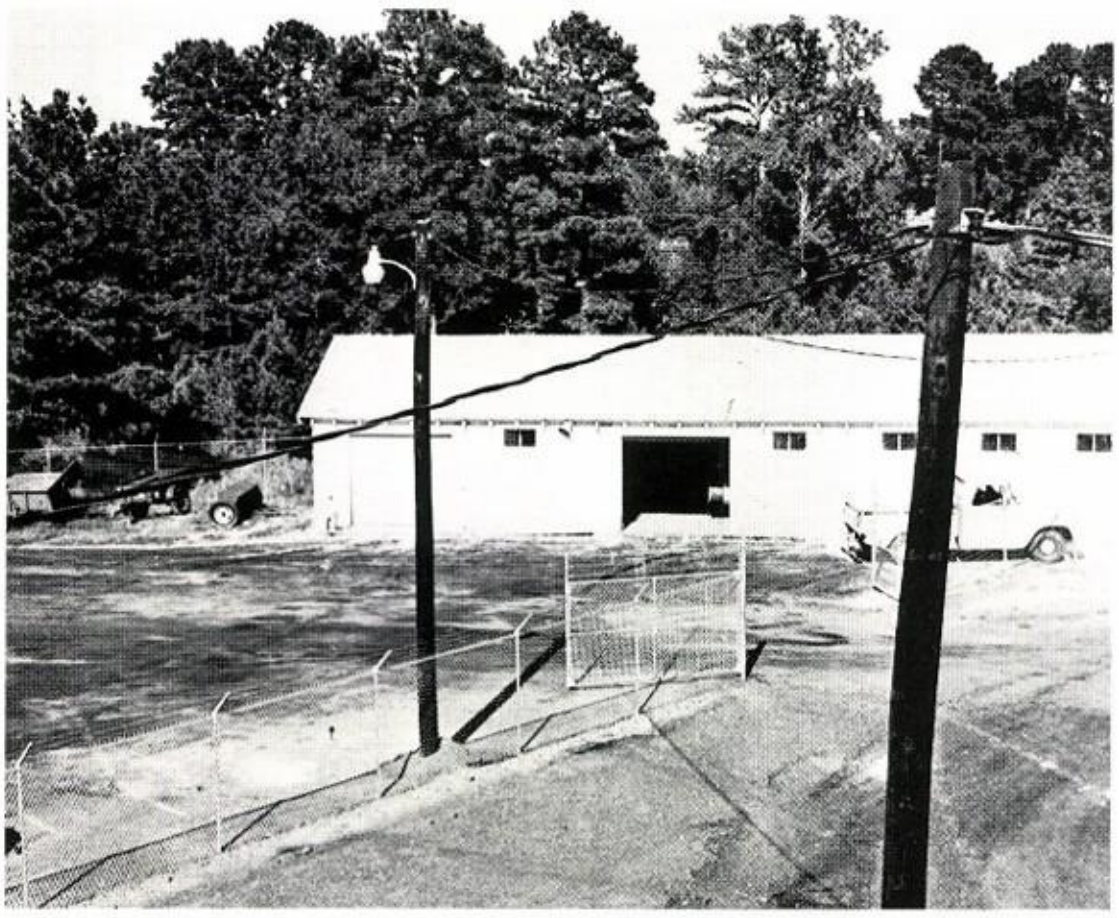
learning, and recreation



The southeast wing includes the shop, the band hall, and science rooms.



The swimming pool opens a week after the school year ends and remains open the entire summer. Swimming lessons are given to the children of the Spring Hill community during the first six weeks under the instruction of Mr. Johnny Beauchamp, Mr. J. R. Gunn, and Mr. Gene King.



Various activities of a filled day

Students neglect their lunch period on arrival of yearbooks.

Teachers, as well as students, attend pep rallies.

Cheerleaders yell, "Victory Tonight"

Lanora Chaplin, Beverly Phillips, and William Jackson arrange board.

Fifth period Homemaking class attempts to make a creamy icing.

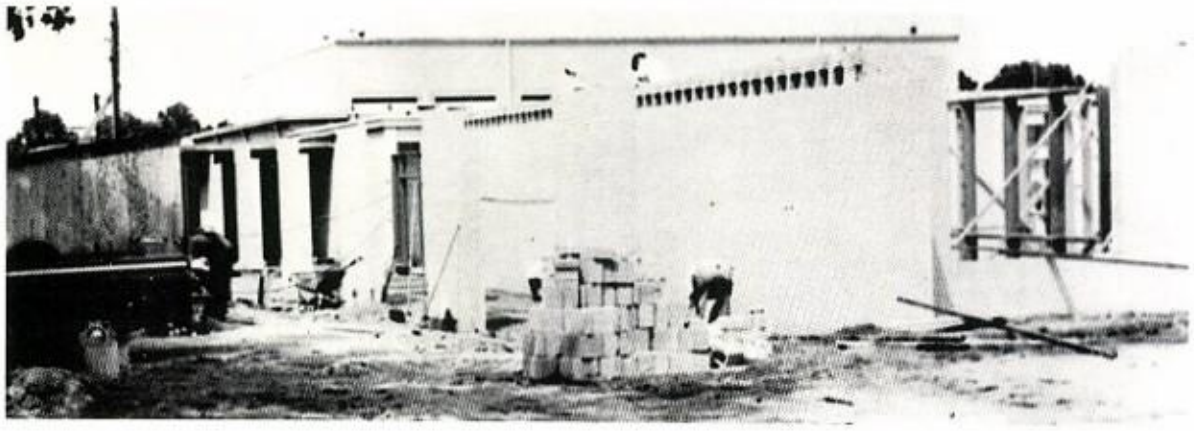
Band plays at outdoor pep rally.

Editors at work.

Second graders intent on art.

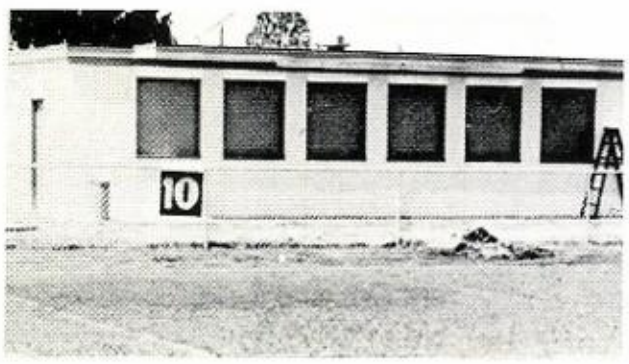
Ray Cox, Bill Allen, and Doug Burnett plane boards.

Construction will enhance surroundings

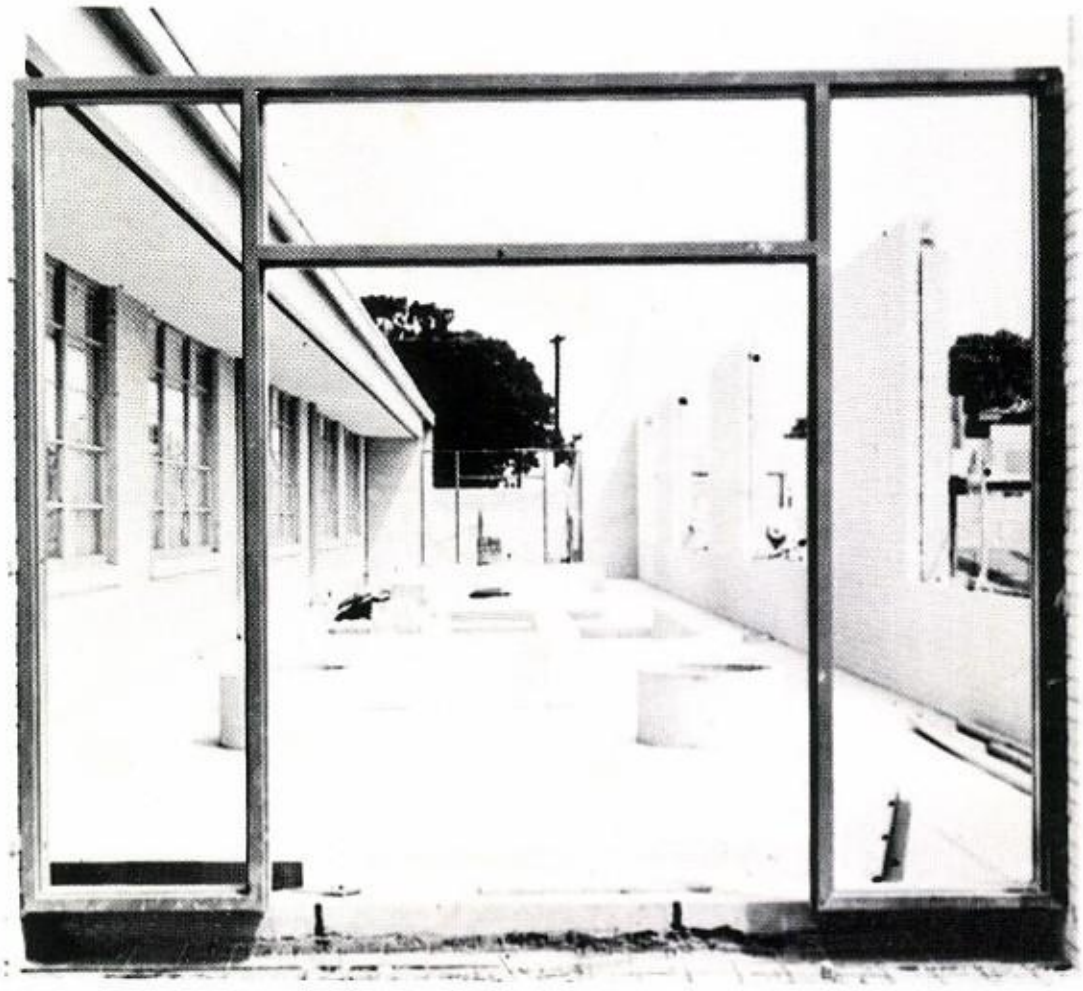


Work on the new high school building is progressing and should be completed by November.

Our new field house has general first-aid equipment and a sonic machine for deep sprains and bruises. Athletes are also provided with a whirlpool for thermal treatment of sore muscles and bruises.

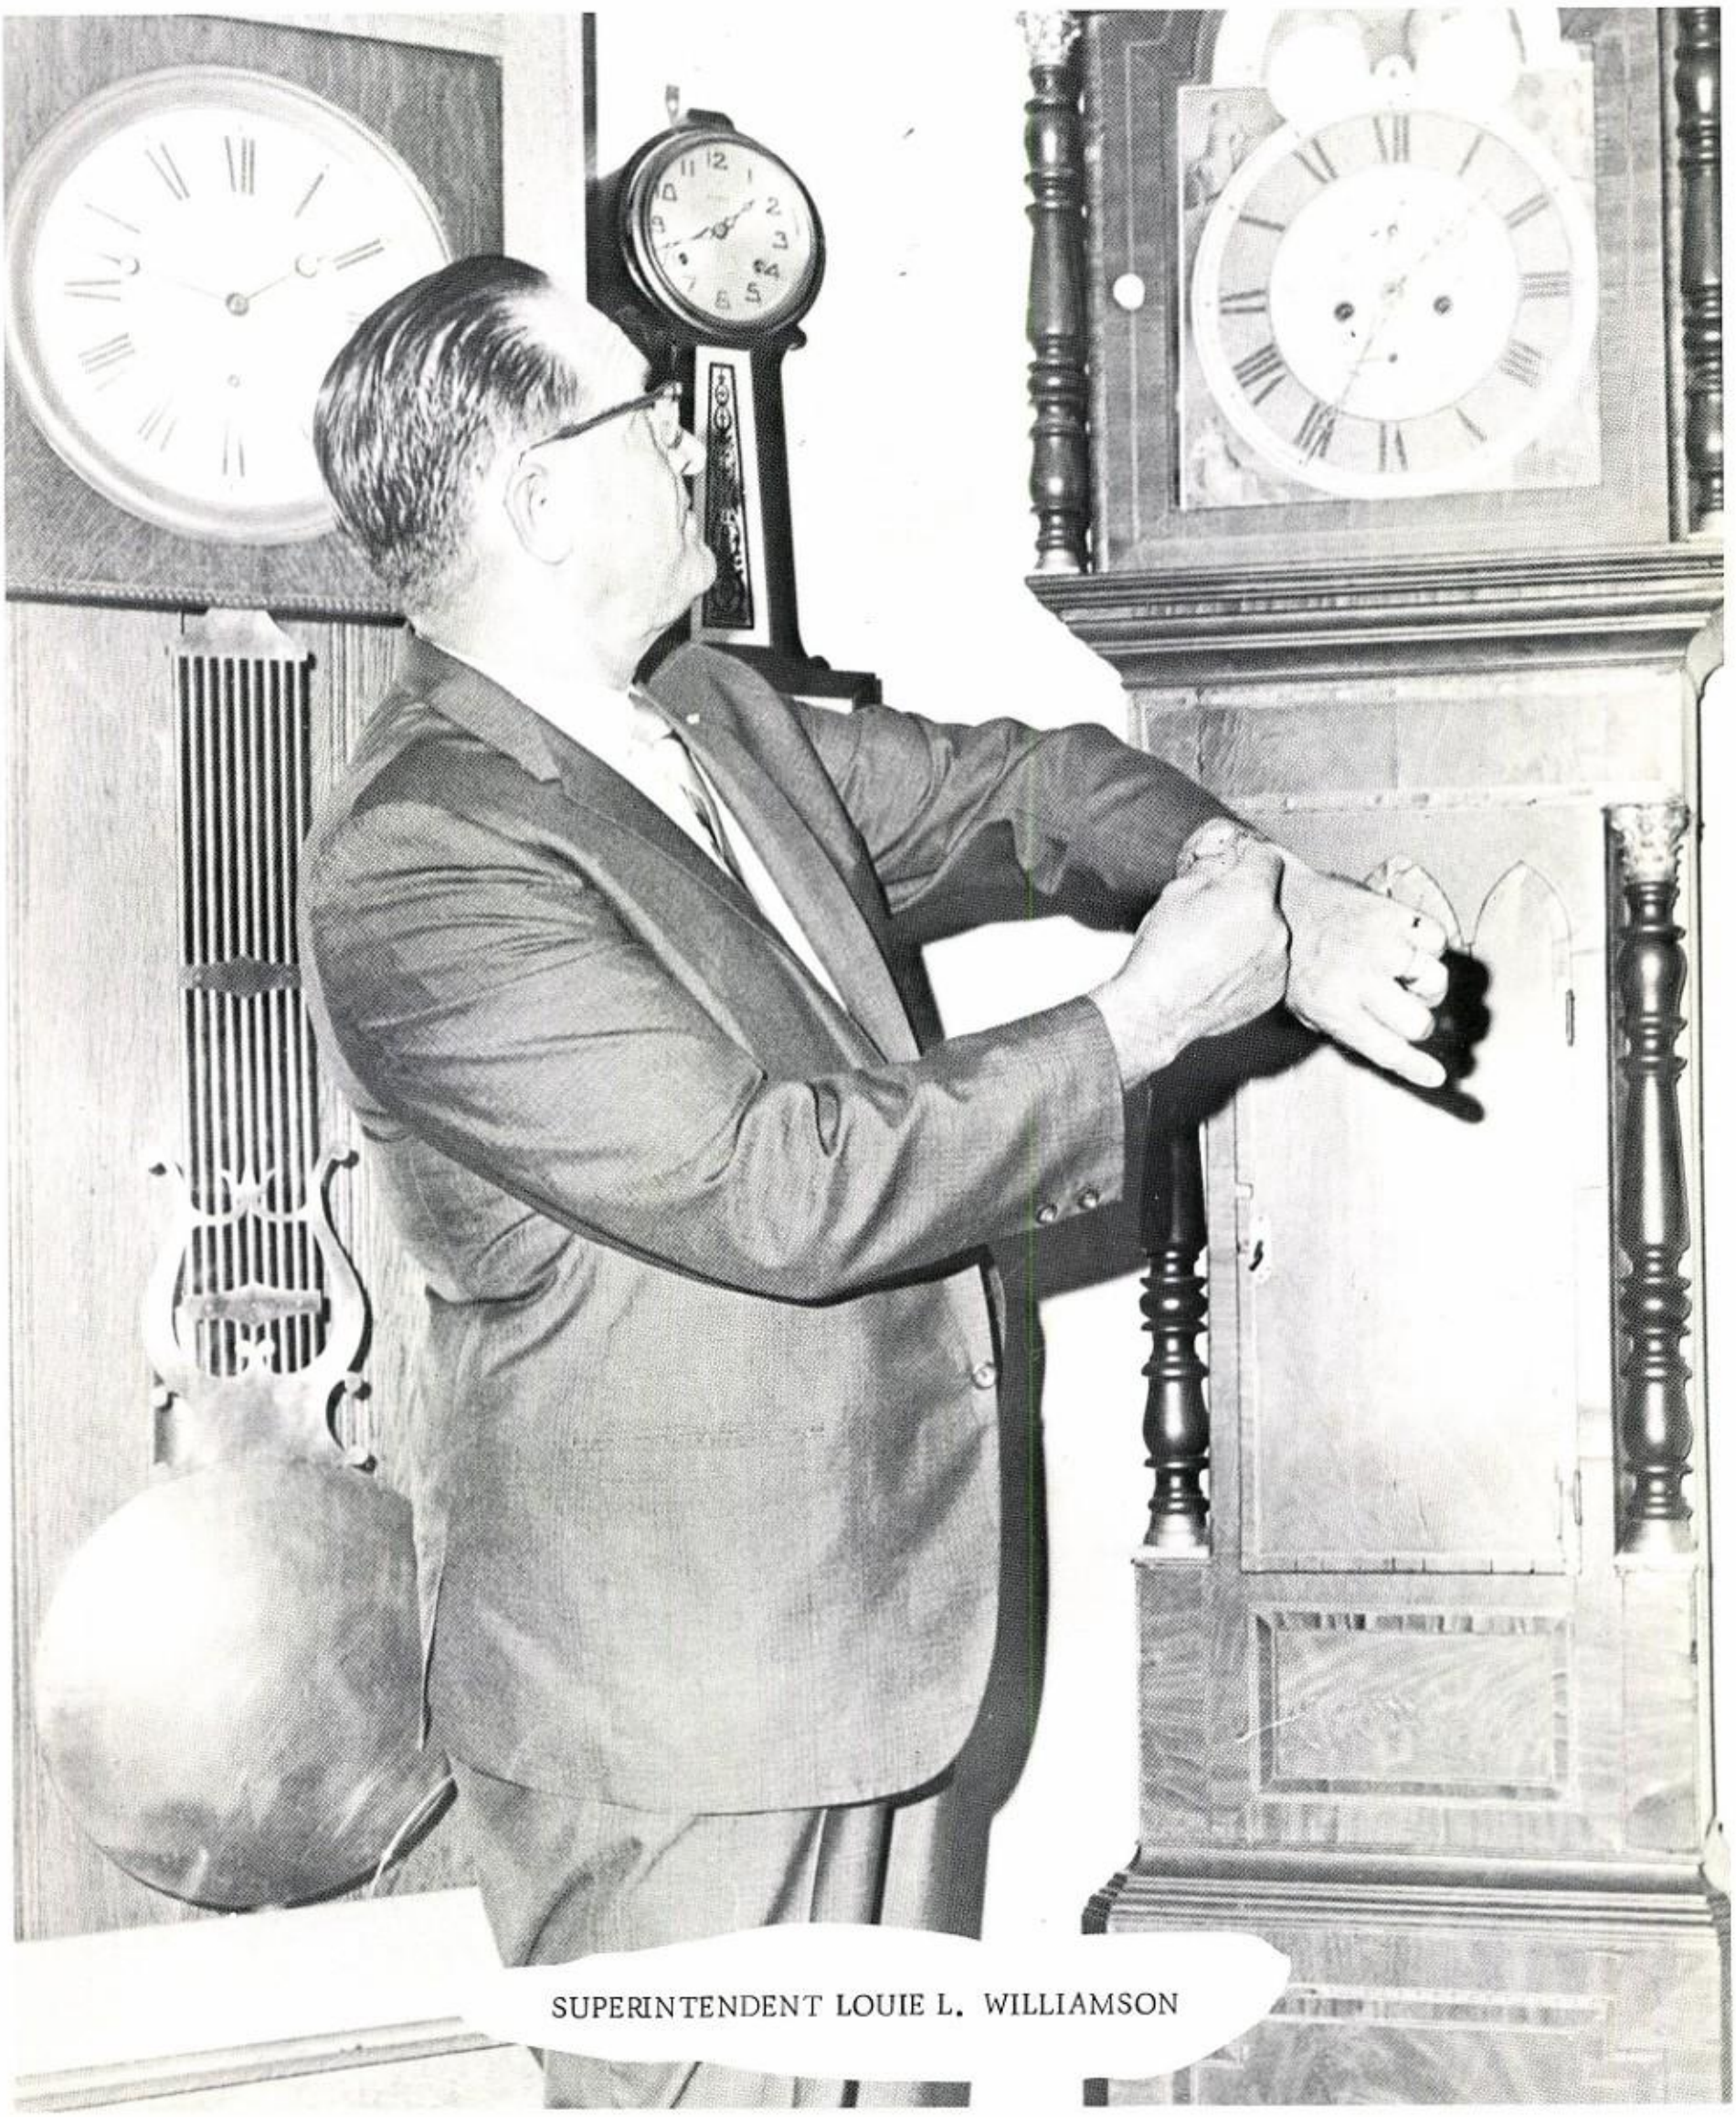


The new concession stand provides more working area for those raising money for various projects. This year the band parents are raising money for a band trip.



On completion, the patio will be an area of relaxation for high school students.

Administration: It is school time again.



SUPERINTENDENT LOUIE L. WILLIAMSON

School Board serves many ways

STANDING: Bill Secord and Superintendent Louie L. Williamson.
SEATED: W. L. Shirley, J. B. Risinger, Tom Brewer, Thomas Webb, E. J. Richardson, and Sid Shelton.

In addition to providing buildings, equipment, and the necessary finances, the school board replaces worn-out or out-of-date machines, band instruments and uniforms, and office equipment. The main building has been painted, air-conditioned, and furnished with new desks, tables, and duplicating machines for teachers.

A new high school wing for English, history, math, speech, homemaking, commercial subjects, and library will be completed adjacent to the science, band hall, and shop wing.

With a larger enrollment Spring Hill is now a class A school.

Superintendent and assistants keep busy

LOUIE L. WILLIAMSON
Superintendent

The superintendent supplies information, collects taxes, formulates policies, maintains public relations, and takes a keen interest in the students. He is a friend to all. He knows the names of the kindergarteners, he listens to the problems of the intermediates, and encourages the high schoolers. With the approval and help of the school board he provides and hires teachers. He rejoices in the merits of all.

After acquiring competence, they are admitted to the high school band to increase their knowledge, interest, and enjoyment of music.

Publications keep students

Working to meet final dead line are Brenda Richardson, Assistant-Editor, Diane Hippler, Editor, Mrs. Mary Green, Sponsor, and Miss Anne Davis, Sponsor.

With the beginning of a new school year, the Panther staff went to work taking pictures, writing copy, designing layouts, cropping, headlining, copyreading, and typing. Extra hours on holidays and weekends, as well as a class period and after school hours, went into the publication of this volume of the Panther to picture the school year at SHHS.

As a result of a job well-done by the 1968 annual staff, their book achieved second place in the Columbia Scholastic Press Association and received the award of All-Texas Honor Rating with special honorable mention in the Texas High School Press Association held at Denton, Texas. The book was edited by Darrell Webb and Assistant-Editor was Martha Owen.

Brenda and Diane apply new methods, which they learned in workshops at Denton and Mt. Pleasant.

Track is characterized by long strides, broad

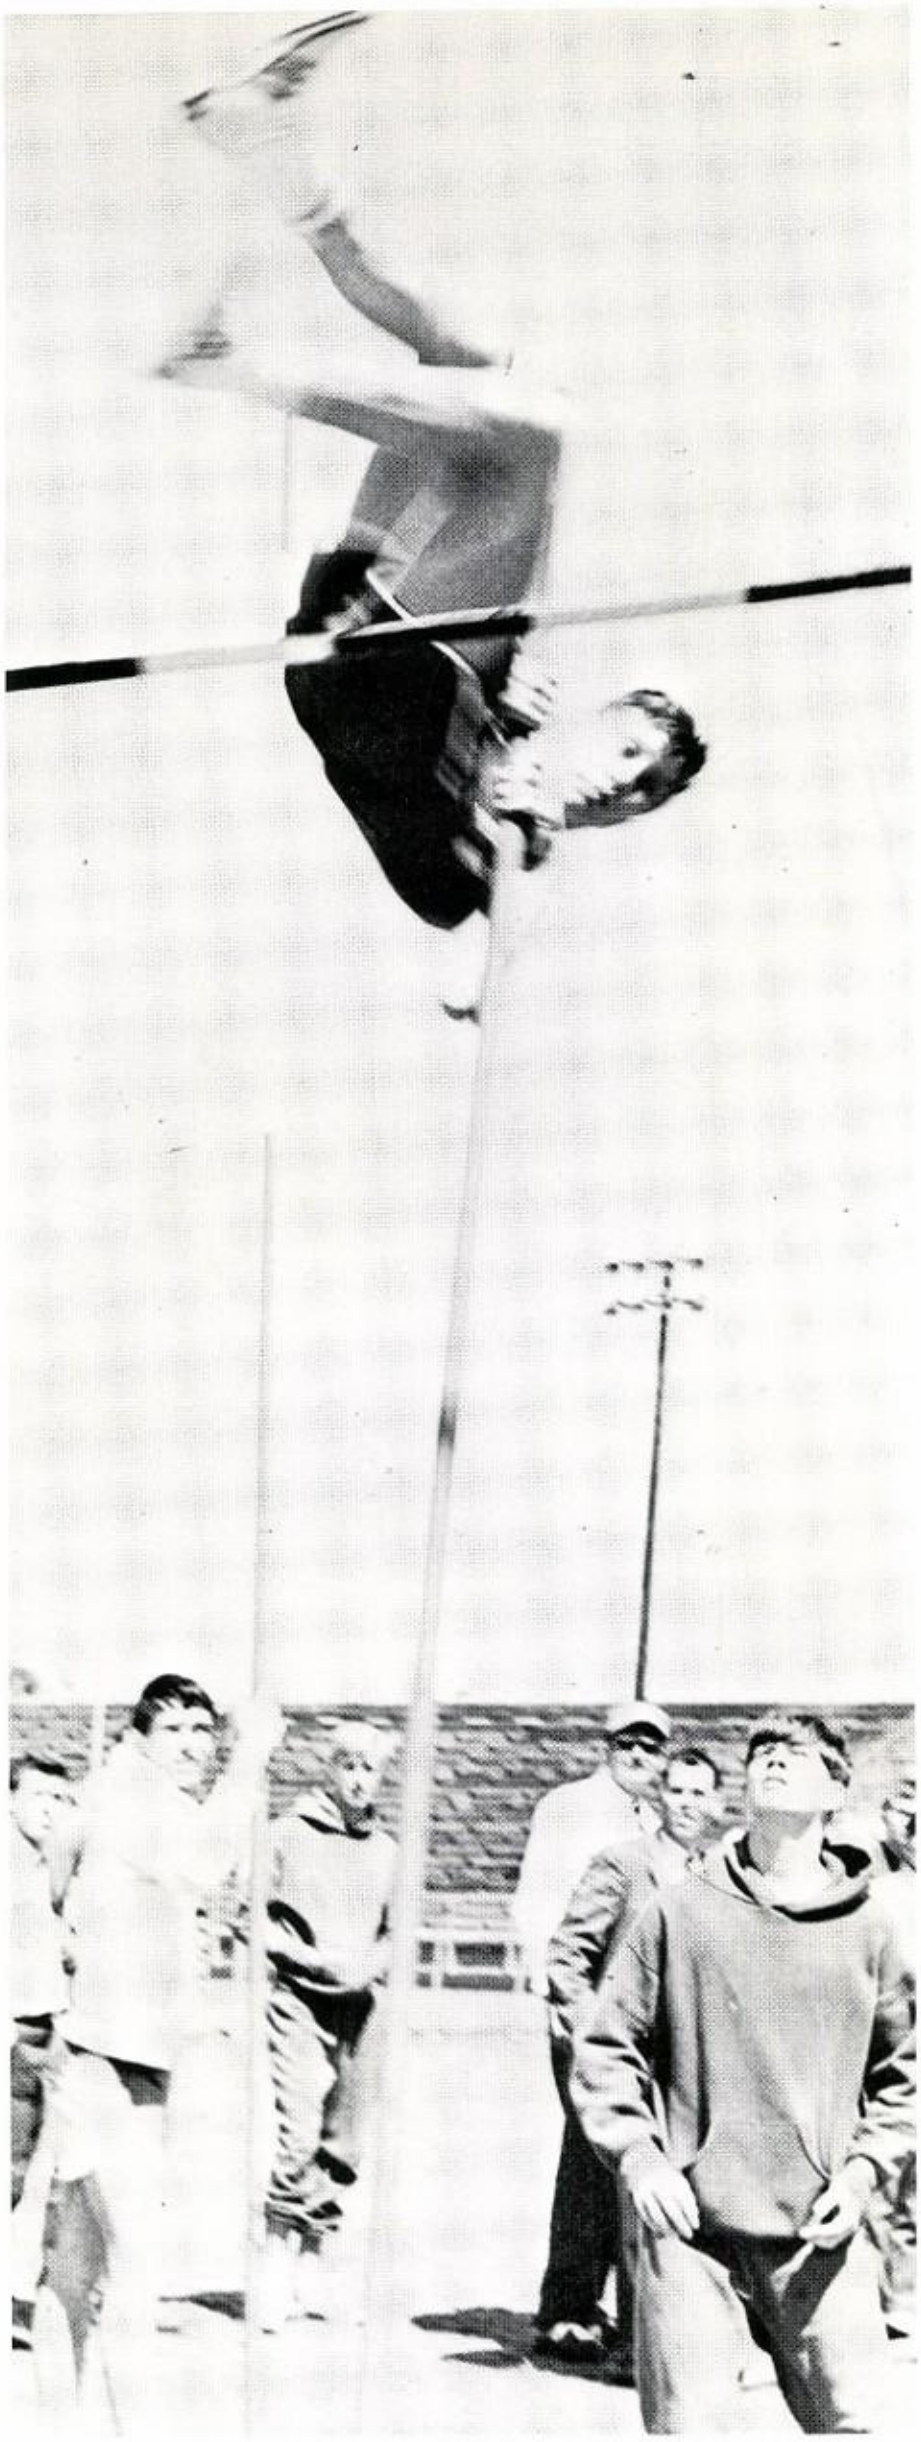
Spring Hill won the Interscholastic League District 27B with 164 points. We had entries in the 100 yd. dash, 220 yd. dash, 330 yd. intermediate hurdles, 440 yd. dash, 440 yd. relay, 889 yd. dash, one mile relay, pole vault, running high jump, and running broad jump.

O'Grissom Davis' long strides help him in placing second in the 220 yard dash at district meet.

A look of stress comes across the face of Darrell Webb, as he breaks the string at district meet to win the quarter mile.

jumps, and clearing bars

Steve Rogers springs into the pit to win the broad jump with 19'-7".



Supporters look on, while Bill Deaton ties the pole vault division with 9'.

Track develops stamina and brings out extra effort

A supreme effort is taken by Steve Rogers as he wins the high jump by crossing 5'-5".

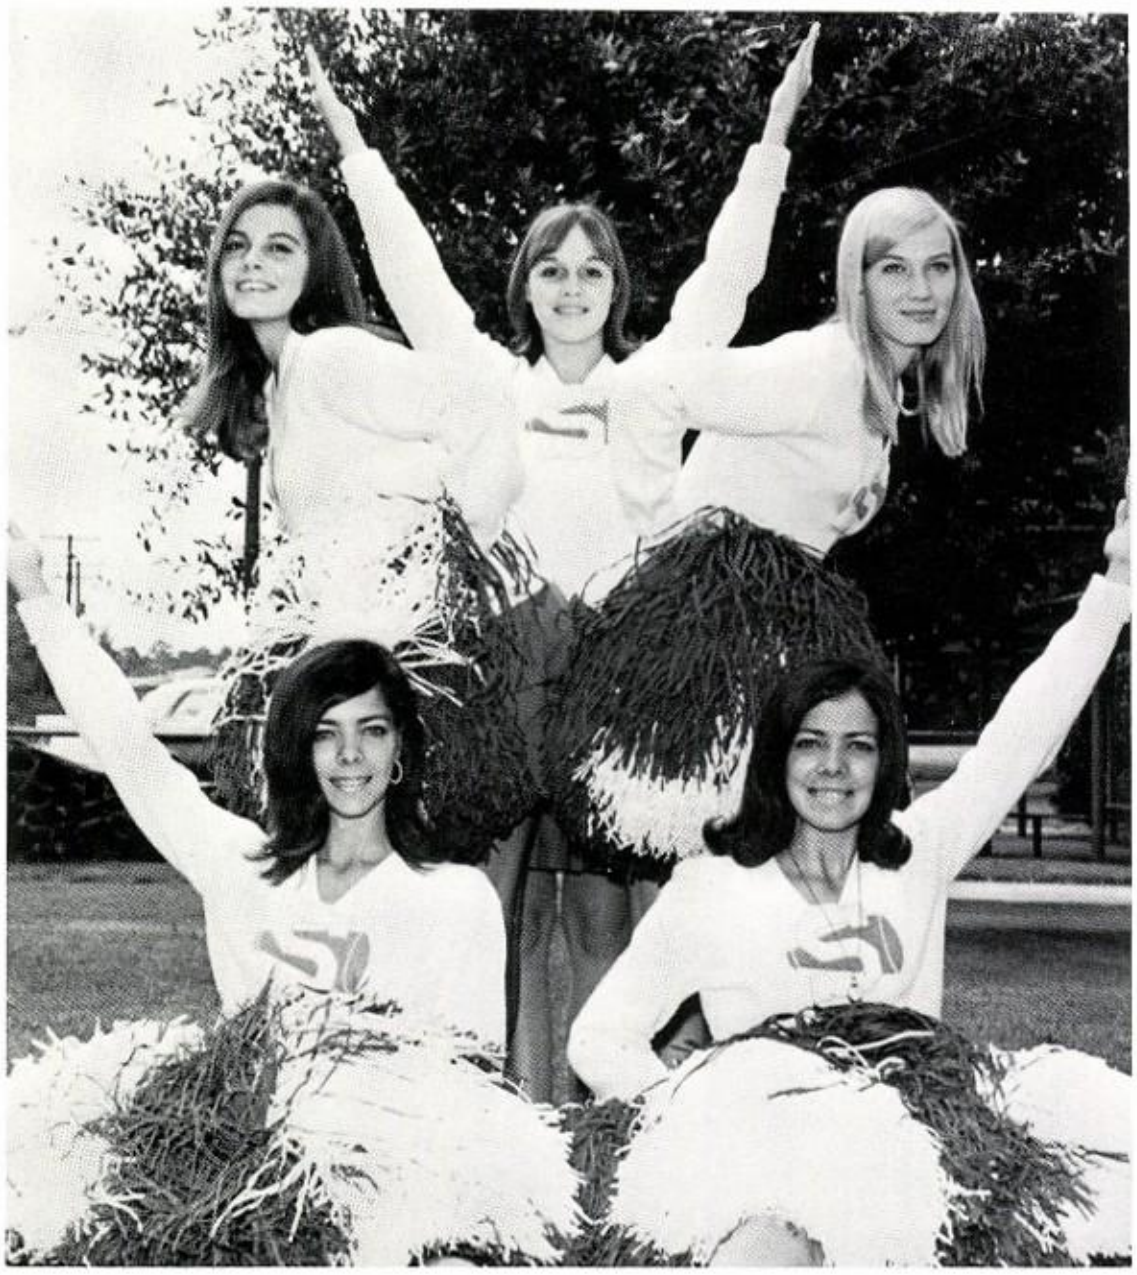
Newly organized, the seventeen member pep squad added color and enthusiasm to pep rallies and ball games. They assist the cheerleaders in decorating the halls and in removing posters. Shirley Phillips is president of the organization. They wear royal blue skirts and waistcoats with white blouses. Pompons are blue and white.

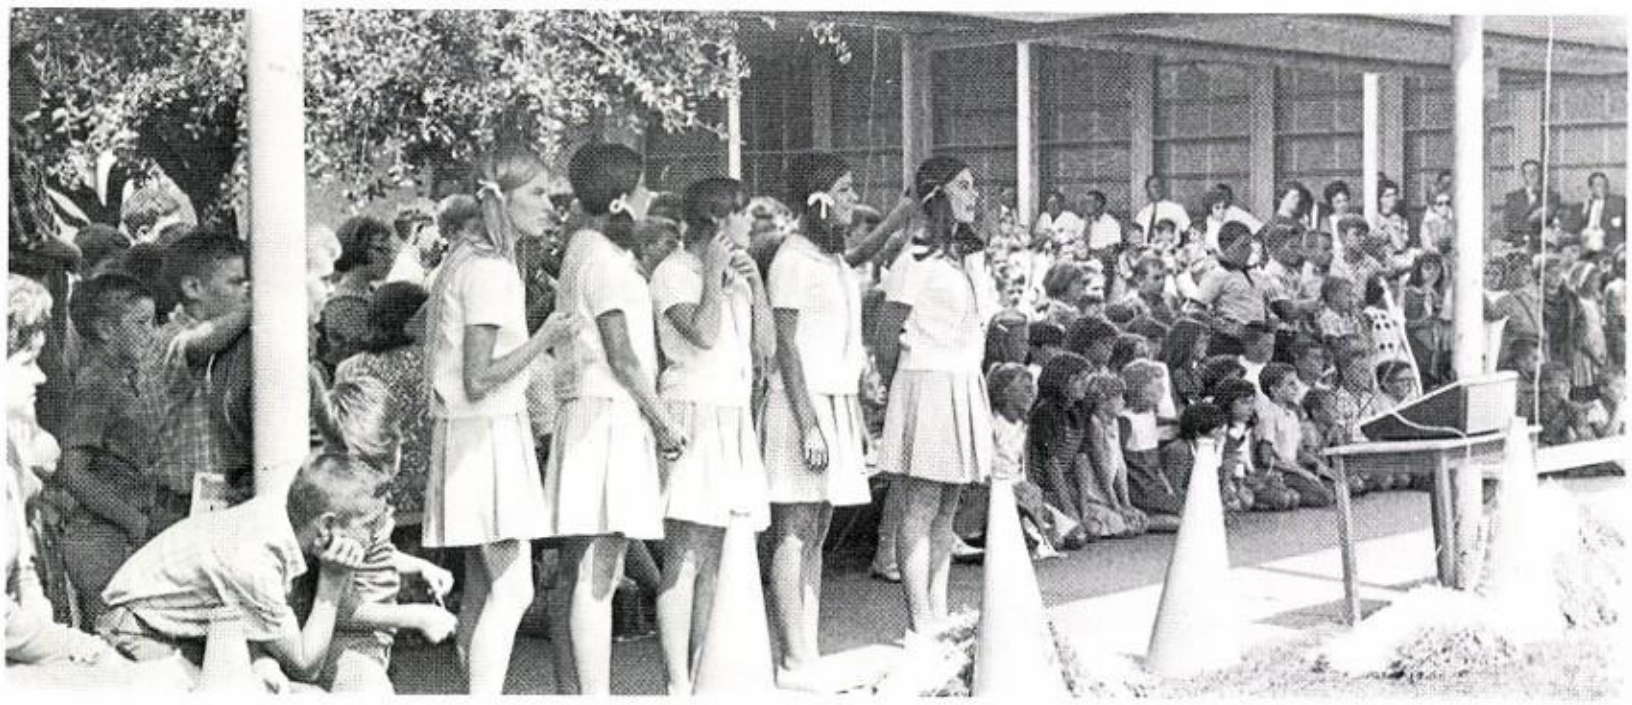
Group is sponsored by Miss Sparks.

Cheerleaders lend pep, enthusiasm,



Cheerleaders make miles of posters and decorate the corridors; wrap the goal posts for home games, boost spirit during the week, provide skits for pep rallies, and lead yells during games.

STANDING: Kathy Murphey, Elaine Dumas, Merry Murphey.
SEATED: Head cheerleaders, Brenda Barnard and Glenda Barnard.



Cheerleaders await the end of the coaches' speeches before leading a yell at an outdoor pep rally.

Farewell: a time of joy and sadness

Grasping diplomas with both joy and sadness, we the seniors of 1969, reminisce about the time we have spent at Spring Hill. Memories of Pep rallies, ballgames, banquets, band contests, school picnics, and fun in the snow linger. We will never forget laboring over a hem, sweating over a math problem, rewriting a theme, and worrying about mid-term and final examinations. At this time of farewell, we have reached the top of our first hill of knowledge and are on our way up a loftier hill, one that leads to higher goals and wider horizons.
